The ongoing Covid-19 pandemic has all but highlighted a multitude of controversial medico-legal issues arising from countries all across the globe when faced with an epidemic or pandemic. As variants of viruses continue their assault against us, never have the framework of medical and ethical principles been more challenged and tested to the extent we are seeing today.

In this webinar, we explore the variety of unique and insightful medico-legal cases that have arisen not only from the current pandemic, but also from past epidemics that have occurred in various parts of the world such as Hong Kong S.A.R, China and Africa.

Drawing from the expertise of our esteemed guest speakers, this webinar will provide us with an overview of medical litigation during some of the most crucial global health crises of our time.
