With rising concerns on climate change and environmental risks felt and/or expressed especially by institutional investors and other stakeholders, assets and equities ownership has a significant impact on a company's environmental footprint and liabilities. Hence, the issue of environmental sustainability, along with related health and safety aspects, has received more attention from potential buyers.

This webinar explores the underlying drivers behind this trend and how these concerns affect a merger and acquisition or from a regulatory compliance perspective. Our esteemed guest speakers led in the development of some of the guidelines for the Department of Environment (DOE) that shape the landscape of environmental due diligence and regulatory compliance in Malaysia. They have more than 20 years of vast experience in conducting environmental due diligence and environmental regulatory checks and advisory, having completed some of the largest environmental due diligence and regulatory compliance exercises in Asia Pacific, and have also supported companies on post M&A transitions and regulatory
