The capacity of an individual to agree or disagree underpins their ability to make an informed decision. How does Malaysia deal with issues regarding mental capacity?

Unlike United Kingdom, Malaysia has no specific legislation to protect an individual who lacks capacity to make their own decisions and to ensure that decisions made on their behalf are in their best interests. The concept of empowering an individual to prepare for a time when they may lack capacity in the future to make decisions for themselves has not been widely considered in our jurisdiction.

In this webinar, we explore the difficulties faced in such circumstances and draw insight from our esteemed guest speaker on the legal position and framework in place in the United Kingdom, as well as seeking views from our local speaker!
